

supply for these areas are already in progress and it is likely that adequate relief would be given to these areas also, by May 1965.

Now that electric power supply will be available in abundance in future, it is expected that there will be a more rapid growth of Industries and of population. In order to meet this situation a Long Range Water Supply and Sewerage Scheme at a cost of Rs. 26 Crores has been prepared by the State Government. The Government of India have conveyed approval to the said Scheme and have already sanctioned Rs. 1.5 crores for 1964-65. For the current year 1965-66 a sum of Rs. 3.5 crores is anticipated from the Government of India for further works in connection with the implementation of the Bangalore Long Range Water Supply and Sewerage Scheme. When this project is implemented, it will ensure an additional supply of 60 million gallons per day from the River Cauvery and the question of Water Supply and sewerage for Bangalore would have been solved satisfactorily.
